

PTS, Inc. Named to Inc. 500/5000 Fastest Growing Private Companies for Third Time

Indianapolis, IN – August 21, 2013. For the third time, Polymer Technology Systems, Inc. (PTS, Inc.), the U.S.-based manufacturer of the CardioChek® family of point-of-care diagnostic products, has been named to the 2013 Inc. 500|5000 list of the fastest-growing private companies in America. The Inc. 5000 is ranked according to percentage revenue growth over a four-year period.

PTS, Inc. joins the elite ranks of companies like Microsoft, Timberland, Vizio, Intuit, Jamba Juice, Oracle, and Zappos.com who have made the list three or more times in their history. “We’re delighted and honored to be named to the list for a third time,” says Robert Huffstodt, President and CEO of PTS, Inc. “Our company continues to grow rapidly because of the quality solutions we’re able to provide for our customers.”

PTS, Inc.’s 60% growth also puts the company 61st in the “Top 100 Indiana Companies” listing, according to Inc.com.

PTS, Inc. recently introduced the CardioChek Plus analyzer which delivers rapid test results for lipids and glucose simultaneously. “We focus our efforts on bringing innovative technologies that can help our customers improve health for people around the world,” says Huffstodt. “Ultimately, our products help people live healthier lives by offering healthcare providers and their patients immediate feedback on important health parameters.”
